Going “old school”: From bedside manner to deskside manner

Dr David Fleischman, Mr Oscar Imaz-Marial

University of the Sunshine Coast, Sippy Downs

Abstract

Interaction between tertiary educators and students, we contend, improves trust and betters student responses to emotional distress while at university. Therefore, we introduce the “Deskside Manner Framework” as an emerging practice in the tertiary teaching and learning context to aid student transition success. Owing to concepts and practice that originated primarily in the medical profession and later in other high credibility professional contexts, the deskside manner framework includes: show respect, critical listening, the four Bs and follow up. Deskside manner is transferrable and we aim to facilitate it through workshops and by developing a digital repository of educator-student interaction stories.

This New Idea and Emerging Initiative was presented at the 2015 STARS Conference in Melbourne, Australia in July 2015 and selected for publication in Student Success Volume 6, Issue 2.
